

What Families & Students Need to Know About:

CIEE

Nevada's Commission on Innovation and Excellence in Education

Joining Together to Advance Progress for Nevada's Students

To build an education system that helps every child succeed both today and tomorrow, Nevada's Commission on Innovation and Excellence in Education (CIEE) was created. Made up of educators, policymakers, and community leaders who reflect the diversity of our state, and supported by the National Center on Education and the Economy, the Commission has:

Included voices from students, educators, and higher education.

Held meetings in schools to stay connected to what matters most.

Heard directly from students, parents, and teachers.

The Goal Enabling All Learners to Thrive in a Changing World

The world is changing fast, and so is the future for our state. The Commission's goal is to help Nevada's schools rise to the challenge by:

Preparing students for a competitive job market so they can build stable, thriving futures.

Developing engaged citizens to sustain strong, vibrant communities.

Building real-world skills so they can tackle challenges in school, work, and life.

A Future-Ready Education for Every Nevada Student

Nevada is ensuring every student is prepared for the future through four big ideas:

Continue the Shift to Competency-Based Education: Students progress when they have mastered skills.

Strengthen Educator Development: Building better systems for recruiting, preparing, and supporting educators.

Expand Career Pathways: More relevant career connected learning for students throughout their school experience.

Design a Performance Dashboard: A transparent tool will track essential, future-ready skills and communicate progress to the public.

Why This Matters for Nevada Families

These changes are designed to provide every child:

Personalized learning that matches your child's interests and strengths.

Better prepared teachers with more training and tools to support every learner.

Authentic learning opportunities that connect to real careers.
