

Social Studies and History

SCED Code	Course Name	SCED Course Identifier Description	SCED Description
04001G0.2511F	Geography	World Geography	World Geography World Geography courses provide students with an overview of world geography but may vary widely in the topics they cover. Topics typically include the physical environment; the political landscape; the relationship between people and the land; economic production and development; and the movement of people, goods, and ideas.
04001H0.5011F	Geography Out-of-District H	World Geography	World Geography World Geography courses provide students with an overview of world geography but may vary widely in the topics they cover. Topics typically include the physical environment; the political landscape; the relationship between people and the land; economic production and development; and the movement of people, goods, and ideas.
04002E0.5011F	Geo (AP MI/MA/HG)	Particular Topics in Geography	Particular Topics in Geography Particular Topics in Geography courses examine a particular topic in geography, such as physical or cultural geography, or the geography of a particular area or region, rather than provide an overview of the field.
04003E0.5011F	Geography IB	IB Geography	IB Geography IB Geography courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Geography exams. These courses integrate both physical and human geography and explore scientific and socio-economic methodologies and fieldwork. In general, IB Geography courses aim to help students understand the relationships within society, the relationships between society and the natural environment, and how those relationships change over time.

04004E0.5011F	AP Human Geo	AP Geography	AP Human Geography Following the College Board’s suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level Human Geography courses, AP Human Geography introduces students to the systematic study of patterns and processes that have shaped the ways in which humans understand, use, and alter the earth’s surface. Students use spatial concepts and landscape analysis to examine human social organization and its environmental consequences and learn about the methods and tools geographers use in their science and practice.
04005G0.5011F	U.S. Geography	Geography	U.S. Geography courses provide an overview of the geography of the United States. Topics typically include the physical environment, the political landscape, the relationship between people and the land, and economic production and development.
04047G0.5011F	Geography— Independent Study	Geography	Geography—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within geography. Independent Study courses may provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular specialization, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.
04048G0.5011F	Geography— Workplace Experience	Geography	Geography—Workplace Experience courses provide work experience in a field related to geography. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04049G0.5011F	Geography— Other	Geography	Other Geography courses.

04051X0.5011F	The Study of World History	World History - Overview	World History—Overview World History—Overview courses provide students with an overview of the history of human society from early civilization to the contemporary period, examining political, economic, social, religious, military, scientific, and cultural developments. World History—Overview courses may include geographical studies, but often these components are not as explicitly taught as geography.
04051H0.5011F	MYP World History H	World History - Overview	World History—Overview World History—Overview courses provide students with an overview of the history of human society from early civilization to the contemporary period, examining political, economic, social, religious, military, scientific, and cultural developments. World History—Overview courses may include geographical studies, but often these components are not as explicitly taught as geography.
04051G0.5011F	World History	World History - Overview	World History—Overview World History—Overview courses provide students with an overview of the history of human society from early civilization to the contemporary period, examining political, economic, social, religious, military, scientific, and cultural developments. World History—Overview courses may include geographical studies, but often these components are not as explicitly taught as geography.
04051H0.5011F	World History H	World History - Overview	World History—Overview World History—Overview courses provide students with an overview of the history of human society from early civilization to the contemporary period, examining political, economic, social, religious, military, scientific, and cultural developments. World History—Overview courses may include geographical studies, but often these components are not as explicitly taught as geography.

04052G0.5011F	World History and Geography	World History and Geography	In addition to covering the objectives of World History—Overview courses, World History and Geography courses provide an overview of world geography. These courses are often developed in response to increased national concern regarding the importance of geography, and they explore geographical concepts.
04053G0.5011F	Modern World History	World History and Geography	Modern World History courses provide an overview of the history of human society in the past few centuries—from the Renaissance period, or later, to the contemporary period—exploring political, economic, social, religious, military, scientific, and cultural developments.
04054E0.5011F	World History IB	IB History	IB History IB History courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate History exams. In these courses, students study historical developments at national, regional, and international levels; critically reflect on their relationship to the present; and explore the nature of historical documentation and the methods used by historians. IB History courses may survey the history of Europe and the Islamic world or focus on 20th-century topics in an international context and may enable students to undertake individual study on a subject of interest in greater detail and depth.
04054G0.5011F	MYP World History	IB History	IB History IB History courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate History exams. In these courses, students study historical developments at national, regional, and international levels; critically reflect on their relationship to the present; and explore the nature of historical documentation and the methods used by historians. IB History courses may survey the history of Europe and the Islamic world or focus on 20th-century topics in an international context and may enable students to undertake individual study on a subject of interest in greater detail and depth.

04055G0.5011F	Modern European History	Social Sciences and History—Other	Modern European History courses examine the development of political, social, and economic movements in Europe over the past few centuries (from the Renaissance period, or later, to the contemporary period) and usually include such topics as the rise of the modern nation state, scientific and industrial revolutions, the age of exploration and nationalism, imperialism, and world war.
04056E0.5011F	AP Europ Hist	AP European History	AP European History Following the College Board’s suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level European History courses, AP European History courses examine European civilization in four chronological periods, from 1450 to the present, and expose students to the factual narrative. In addition, these courses help students develop an understanding of some of the principal themes in modern European history and the abilities to analyze historical evidence and to express that understanding and analysis in writing.
04058G0.5011F	Ancient Civilizations	Social Sciences and History—Other	Ancient Civilizations courses provide a survey of the evolution of society from the ancient Middle East through Greek and Roman civilizations. Typically, in these courses, students study the rise and fall of civilizations and empires, with an emphasis on the legacies they provide to successive societies.
04059G0.5011F	Medieval European History	Social Sciences and History—Other	Medieval European History courses provide a survey of European civilization from the fall of Rome through the late Middle Ages.
04060G0.5011F	Ancient and Medieval History	Social Sciences and History—Other	Ancient and Medieval History courses combine a study of ancient civilizations and Medieval Europe, beginning with the civilizations of the ancient Middle East and continuing through the late Middle Ages in Europe.

04061G0.5011F	Intro Global Stdy	World Area Studies	World Area Studies World Area Studies courses examine the history, politics, economics, society, and/or culture of one or more regions of the world, such as Africa, Latin America, the former Soviet Union, Far East Asia, and the Middle East. These courses may focus primarily on the history of a particular region or may take an interdisciplinary approach to the contemporary issues affecting the region. Furthermore, these courses may emphasize one particular country (other than the United States), rather than emphasizing a region or continent.
04061G0.5011F	Intro Global Study	World Area Studies	World Area Studies World Area Studies courses examine the history, politics, economics, society, and/or culture of one or more regions of the world, such as Africa, Latin America, the former Soviet Union, Far East Asia, and the Middle East. These courses may focus primarily on the history of a particular region or may take an interdisciplinary approach to the contemporary issues affecting the region. Furthermore, these courses may emphasize one particular country (other than the United States), rather than emphasizing a region or continent.
04062G0.5011F	World People Studies	Social Sciences and History—Other	World People Studies courses allow students to study various types of subgroups that have something in common such as religion, gender, or culture. Similar in style to World Area Studies but focusing on a group of people rather than on a specific region, these courses examine a subgroup’s history, politics, economics, and/or culture.
04063G0.5011F	Western Civilization	Social Sciences and History—Other	Western Civilization courses apply an interdisciplinary approach to the study of western cultural traditions, frequently using a chronological framework. Course content typically includes a survey of the major developments in and contributors to art and architecture, literature, religion and philosophy, and culture. These courses may also cover intellectual and political movements.

04064G0.5011F	Contemporary World Issues	Social Sciences and History—Other	Contemporary World Issues courses enable students to study political, economic, and social issues facing the world. These courses may focus on current issues, examine selected issues throughout the 20th century, and look at historical causes or possible solutions.
04065G0.5011F	World/Am Leaders	Particular Topics in World History	Particular Topics in World History These courses examine particular topics in world history other than those already described elsewhere in this classification system.
04065G0.5011F	History of Warfare	Particular Topics in World History	Particular Topics in World History These courses examine particular topics in world history other than those already described elsewhere in this classification system.
04065G0.5011F	Peace & Conflict	Particular Topics in World History	Particular Topics in World History These courses examine particular topics in world history other than those already described elsewhere in this classification system.
04065G0.5011F	Military Strategies	Particular Topics in World History	Particular Topics in World History These courses examine particular topics in world history other than those already described elsewhere in this classification system.
04067E0.5011F	AP World History: Modern	World History	Following the College Board’s suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level World History courses, AP World History: Modern courses examine world history from 1200 CE to the present with the aim of helping students make connections of historical evolution across times and places. These courses highlight the interaction between humans and the environment; development and interaction of cultures; state-building, expansion, and conflict; creation, expansion and interaction of economic systems; development and transformation of social structures; and technology and innovation.

04068G0.5011F	CI Global Perspectives & Independent Research	CI Global Perspectives & Independent Research	Cambridge International (CI) Global Perspectives & Research courses prepare students to take the Cambridge Global Perspectives & Research assessments. These courses teach students to broaden their outlook on our rapidly changing world through critical analysis and reflection on significant global issues. Students will develop the high-demand skills of research, critical thinking and reasoning, and communication through the 'Critical Path' approach.
04097G0.5011F	World History—Independent Study	World History	World History—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within world history. Independent Study courses may provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular period or area, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.
04098G0.5011F	World History—Workplace Experience	World History	World History—Workplace Experience courses provide work experience in a field related to world history. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04099G0.5011F	Latin Amer Hist	World History - Other	World History—Other World History courses.
04101X0.5011F	The Study of U.S. History	U.S. History—Comprehensive	U.S. History—Comprehensive U.S. History—Comprehensive courses provide students with an overview of the history of the United States, examining time periods from discovery or colonialism through World War II or after. These courses typically include a historical overview of political, military, scientific, and social developments. Course content may include a history of the North American peoples before European settlement.

04101G0.5011F	US History	U.S. History— Comprehensive	U.S. History—Comprehensive U.S. History—Comprehensive courses provide students with an overview of the history of the United States, examining time periods from discovery or colonialism through World War II or after. These courses typically include a historical overview of political, military, scientific, and social developments. Course content may include a history of the North American peoples before European settlement.
04101H0.5011F	US History I H NSHE	U.S. History— Comprehensive	U.S. History—Comprehensive U.S. History—Comprehensive courses provide students with an overview of the history of the United States, examining time periods from discovery or colonialism through World War II or after. These courses typically include a historical overview of political, military, scientific, and social developments. Course content may include a history of the North American peoples before European settlement.
04101H0.5011F	US History H	U.S. History— Comprehensive	U.S. History—Comprehensive U.S. History—Comprehensive courses provide students with an overview of the history of the United States, examining time periods from discovery or colonialism through World War II or after. These courses typically include a historical overview of political, military, scientific, and social developments. Course content may include a history of the North American peoples before European settlement.
04101H0.5011F	US History II H NSHE	U.S. History— Comprehensive	U.S. History—Comprehensive U.S. History—Comprehensive courses provide students with an overview of the history of the United States, examining time periods from discovery or colonialism through World War II or after. These courses typically include a historical overview of political, military, scientific, and social developments. Course content may include a history of the North American peoples before European settlement.

04101E0.5011F	US History IB	U.S. History— Comprehensive	U.S. History—Comprehensive U.S. History—Comprehensive courses provide students with an overview of the history of the United States, examining time periods from discovery or colonialism through World War II or after. These courses typically include a historical overview of political, military, scientific, and social developments. Course content may include a history of the North American peoples before European settlement.
04102G0.5011F	Early U.S. History	US History	Early U.S. History courses examine the history of the United States from the colonial period to the Civil War or Reconstruction era (some courses end after this period). Some courses include North American history before European settlement, while others may begin at the formation of the new nation. These courses typically include a historical overview of political, military, scientific, and social developments.
04103G0.5011F	Modern U.S. History	US History	Modern U.S. History courses examine the history of the United States from the Civil War or Reconstruction era (some courses begin at a later period) through the present time. These courses typically include a historical review of political, military, scientific, and social developments.
04104E0.5011F	AP U.S. History	AP U.S. History	AP U.S. History Following the College Board’s suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level U.S. History courses, AP U.S. History courses provide students with the analytical skills and factual knowledge necessary to address critically problems and materials in U.S. history. Students learn to assess historical materials and to weigh the evidence and interpretations presented in historical scholarship. The course examines the discovery and settlement of the New World through the recent past.

04105G0.5011F	State-Specific Studies	Social Sciences and History—Other	State-Specific Studies courses examine the history, politics, economics, society, and/or cultures of one state in the United States. This course may focus primarily on the history of that state or may take an interdisciplinary approach to the contemporary issues affecting it.
04106G0.5011F	Contemporary U.S. Issues	Social Sciences and History—Other	Contemporary U.S. Issues courses study the political, economic, and social issues facing the United States, with or without an emphasis on state and local issues. These courses may focus on current issues or may examine selected issues that span throughout the 20th century to the present.
04107G0.5011F	Ethnic Studies	U.S. Ethnic Studies	U.S. Ethnic Studies U.S. Ethnic Studies courses examine the history, politics, economics, society, and/or culture of one or more of the racial/ethnic groups in the United States. These courses may focus primarily on the history of an individual racial/ethnic group or may take a more comprehensive approach to studying the contemporary issues affecting racial/ethnic groups overall.
04107G0.2511F	African/Amer Exp	U.S. Ethnic Studies	U.S. Ethnic Studies U.S. Ethnic Studies courses examine the history, politics, economics, society, and/or culture of one or more of the racial/ethnic groups in the United States. These courses may focus primarily on the history of an individual racial/ethnic group or may take a more comprehensive approach to studying the contemporary issues affecting racial/ethnic groups overall.
04108G0.5011F	U.S. Gender Studies	Social Sciences and History—Other	U.S. Gender Studies courses examine the history, politics, economics, and/or culture of gender in U.S. society. These courses may focus primarily on gender relations or may take a more comprehensive approach to studying the contemporary issues related to gender.

04109G0.5011F	Particular Topics in U.S. History	Social Sciences and History—Other	These courses examine a particular topic in U.S. History, such as particular time periods in the history of the United States, or they may focus on the history of particular U.S. regions rather than provide an overview of the subject.
04110G0.5011F	U.S. Wars and Military Conflicts	Social Sciences and History—Other	U.S. Wars and Military Conflicts courses focus on the study of one or more wars and major military conflicts in which the United States had a significant role. These courses concentrate on one of many topics related to war, including the causes; U.S. involvement; and social, political, and economic effects. Specific wars may include the Revolutionary War, American Civil War, World War I, World War II, Korean War, Vietnam War, Gulf War, or other contemporary military conflicts.
04111G0.5011F	CI U.S. History	CI U.S. History	Cambridge International (CI) U.S. History courses prepare students to take the American history options of the Cambridge History assessments. These courses teach students the periods and themes in U.S. history as well as the significance and interpretations of cause and consequence, change and continuity, and similarity and difference in U.S. history. Students will learn both foundational and modern history of the U.S., historical sources, interpretations of U.S. historical issues, and methods used by historians.
04147G0.5011F	U.S. History—Independent Study	US History	U.S. History—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within U.S. History. Independent Study courses may provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular period or area, to explore a topic in greater detail, or to develop more advanced skills.

04148G0.5011F	U.S. History— Workplace Experience	US History	U.S. History—Workplace Experience courses provide work experience in a field related to U.S. history. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04149G0.5011F	U.S. History— Other	US History	Other U.S. History courses.
04151H0.5011F	Intro American Politics H NSHE	U.S. Government— Comprehensive	U.S. Government—Comprehensive U.S. Government—Comprehensive courses provide an overview of the structure and functions of the U.S. government and political institutions and examine constitutional principles, the concepts of rights and responsibilities, the role of political parties and interest groups, and the importance of civic participation in the democratic process. These courses may examine the structure and function of state and local governments and may cover certain economic and legal topics.
04151X0.5011F	The Study of US Government	U.S. Government— Comprehensive	U.S. Government—Comprehensive U.S. Government—Comprehensive courses provide an overview of the structure and functions of the U.S. government and political institutions and examine constitutional principles, the concepts of rights and responsibilities, the role of political parties and interest groups, and the importance of civic participation in the democratic process. These courses may examine the structure and function of state and local governments and may cover certain economic and legal topics.

04151H0.5011F	US Govt H	U.S. Government— Comprehensive	U.S. Government—Comprehensive U.S. Government— Comprehensive courses provide an overview of the structure and functions of the U.S. government and political institutions and examine constitutional principles, the concepts of rights and responsibilities, the role of political parties and interest groups, and the importance of civic participation in the democratic process. These courses may examine the structure and function of state and local governments and may cover certain economic and legal topics.
04151G0.5011F	Amer Politics	U.S. Government— Comprehensive	U.S. Government—Comprehensive U.S. Government— Comprehensive courses provide an overview of the structure and functions of the U.S. government and political institutions and examine constitutional principles, the concepts of rights and responsibilities, the role of political parties and interest groups, and the importance of civic participation in the democratic process. These courses may examine the structure and function of state and local governments and may cover certain economic and legal topics.
04151E0.5011F	US Govt IB	U.S. Government— Comprehensive	U.S. Government—Comprehensive U.S. Government— Comprehensive courses provide an overview of the structure and functions of the U.S. government and political institutions and examine constitutional principles, the concepts of rights and responsibilities, the role of political parties and interest groups, and the importance of civic participation in the democratic process. These courses may examine the structure and function of state and local governments and may cover certain economic and legal topics.

04151G0.5011F	US Government	U.S. Government— Comprehensive	U.S. Government—Comprehensive U.S. Government— Comprehensive courses provide an overview of the structure and functions of the U.S. government and political institutions and examine constitutional principles, the concepts of rights and responsibilities, the role of political parties and interest groups, and the importance of civic participation in the democratic process. These courses may examine the structure and function of state and local governments and may cover certain economic and legal topics.
04151E0.5023F	US/NV Hist Acc 7	U.S. Government— Comprehensive	U.S. Government—Comprehensive U.S. Government— Comprehensive courses provide an overview of the structure and functions of the U.S. government and political institutions and examine constitutional principles, the concepts of rights and responsibilities, the role of political parties and interest groups, and the importance of civic participation in the democratic process. These courses may examine the structure and function of state and local governments and may cover certain economic and legal topics.
04152G0.5011F	Particular Topics in U.S. Government	Social Sciences and History—Other	These courses examine a particular topic pertaining to U.S. government and political institutions rather than provide a general overview of the subject. They may concentrate on one of many topics related to governmental structure, function, and purposes, such as the Constitution, the Supreme Court, Congress, or the Office of the President.
04153G0.5011F	Political Science	Political Science	Political Science courses approach the study of politics from a theoretical perspective, including an examination of the role of government and the nature of political behavior, political power, and political action.

04154G0.5011F	Comparative Government	Social Sciences and History—Other	Comparative Government courses study the basic tenets of government, searching for the differences and similarities among several forms of government. These courses take a comparative approach to the study of government and politics, focusing on how the United States compares with other nations.
04155G0.2511F	MYP International Relations	International Relations	International Relations International Relations courses provide students with an introduction to the relationships that exist among nations, including an examination of the modern state; the foreign policies of nations; the dynamics of nationalism, ideology, and culture; and the role of international organizations. The courses may also emphasize contemporary events.
04155H0.5011F	MYP International Relations H	International Relations	International Relations International Relations courses provide students with an introduction to the relationships that exist among nations, including an examination of the modern state; the foreign policies of nations; the dynamics of nationalism, ideology, and culture; and the role of international organizations. The courses may also emphasize contemporary events.
04156G0.5011F	World Affairs	United States and World Affairs	United States and World Affairs United States and World Affairs courses provide a study of global interrelationships. Topics covered may include geographic, political, economic, and social issues of a particular country or region, with an emphasis on how these issues influence (or are influenced by) the way in which the United States relates to other countries in an interdependent world context.

04157E0.5011F	AP U.S. Govt/Pol	AP U.S. Government and Politics	AP U.S. Government and Politics Following the College Board's suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level U.S. Government and Politics courses, these courses provide students with an analytical perspective on government and politics in the United States, involving both the study of general concepts used to interpret U.S. politics and the analysis of specific case studies and foundational documents. The courses generally cover foundations of American democracy, interaction among branches of government, political beliefs and behaviors, political participation, and civil rights and liberties.
04158E0.5011F	AP Comp Politics	AP Comparative Government and Politics	AP Comparative Government and Politics Following the College Board's suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level Comparative Government and Politics courses, these courses offer students an understanding of the world's diverse political structures and practices. The courses encompass the study of both specific countries and general concepts used to interpret the key political relationships found in virtually all national policies. Course content generally includes sovereignty, authority, and power; political institutions; the relationships among citizens, society, and the state; political and economic change; and public policy.
04159E0.5011F	AP Government	Government	AP Government courses prepare students for the AP exams in both U.S. Government and Politics and Comparative Government and Politics. Course content includes the topics covered in those two separate courses. See SCED Codes 04157 and 04158 for detailed content descriptions.
04160G0.5011F	U.S. Government, Civics, and Economics	Government	U.S. Government, Civics, and Economics courses combine a study of the structure of national, state, and local U.S. government with an overview of the principles of market economics. Course content may include contemporary U.S. issues. These courses prepare students to perform effectively as informed citizens.

04161G0.5011F	Civics	Social Sciences and History—Other	Civics courses examine the general structure and functions of U.S. systems of government, the roles, and responsibilities of citizens to participate in the political process, and the relationship of the individual to the law and legal system. These courses do not typically delve to the same degree of detail into constitutional principles, or the role of political parties and interest groups as do comprehensive courses in U.S. Government.
04162G0.5011F	Fund Law & Resch	Law Studies	Law Studies Law Studies courses examine the history and philosophy of law as part of U.S. society and include the study of the major substantive areas of both criminal and civil law, such as constitutional rights, torts, contracts, property, criminal law, family law, and equity. Although these courses emphasize the study of law, they may also cover the workings of the legal system.
04162G0.5011F	Debate/Trial	Law Studies	Law Studies Law Studies courses examine the history and philosophy of law as part of U.S. society and include the study of the major substantive areas of both criminal and civil law, such as constitutional rights, torts, contracts, property, criminal law, family law, and equity. Although these courses emphasize the study of law, they may also cover the workings of the legal system.
04162G0.5011F	Trial Advocacy	Law Studies	Law Studies Law Studies courses examine the history and philosophy of law as part of U.S. society and include the study of the major substantive areas of both criminal and civil law, such as constitutional rights, torts, contracts, property, criminal law, family law, and equity. Although these courses emphasize the study of law, they may also cover the workings of the legal system.

04163G0.5011F	Consumer Law	Social Sciences and History—Other	Consumer Law courses present a history and philosophy of law and the legal system in the United States, with a particular emphasis on those topics affecting students as consumers and young adults (such as contractual laws, laws pertaining to housing and marriage, and constitutional rights).
04164G0.2511F	Leg Eth Iss in Bus	Business Law	Business Law Business Law courses present a history and philosophy of law and the legal system in the United States, with a particular emphasis on those topics affecting students as future business leaders and employees. Such topics may include contracts, commercial paper and debt instruments, property rights, employer/employee relationships, and constitutional rights and responsibilities.
04165G0.5011F	Civil & Crim Law	Legal System	Legal System Legal System courses examine the workings of the U.S. criminal and civil justice systems, including providing an understanding of civil and criminal law and the legal process, the structure and procedures of courts, and the role of various legal or judicial agencies. Although these courses emphasize the legal process, they may also cover the history and foundation of U.S. law (the Constitution, statutes, and precedents). Course content may also include contemporary problems in the criminal justice system.
04166G0.5011F	Civil Rights & Lib	Particular Topics in Law	Particular Topics in Law These courses examine a particular topic in law such as the Constitution, specific statutes, or the legal process rather than provide an overview.
04166G0.5011F	MYP Civil Rights and Liberties	Particular Topics in Law	Particular Topics in Law These courses examine a particular topic in law such as the Constitution, specific statutes, or the legal process rather than provide an overview.

04167G0.5011F	Simulated Political Process	Social Sciences and History—Other	Simulated Political Process courses provide students with the opportunity to confront and resolve national and international issues by mirroring local, national, or international governmental bodies. These courses focus on government and international relations, conflict resolution, and policies and procedures of government. Course topics may include simulations of jury trials and national or international governmental organizations.
04169G0.5011F	IB Global Politics	Social Sciences and History—Other	IB Global Politics prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Global Politics exams through the exploration of political concepts and development of an understanding of local, national, international, and global dimensions of political activity. Topics may include contemporary global political challenges.
04171G0.5011F	IB Individuals and Societies, Middle Years Program	Social Sciences and History—Other	International Baccalaureate (IB) Individuals and Societies, Middle Years Program courses aim to develop the understanding and application of concepts (time, place and space, change, systems and global awareness) and skills (technical, analytical, problem solving, and investigative). Content may include topics such as geography, history, economics, politics, civics, sociology, anthropology, and psychology. These courses were formerly known as IB Humanities, Middle Years Program.
04197G0.5011F	Government, Politics and Law—Independent Study	Government	Government, Politics, and Law—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within one of the fields of Government, Politics, and Law. These courses may provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular specialization, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.

04198G0.5011F	Government, Politics and Law—Workplace Experience	Social Sciences and History—Other	Government, Politics, and Law—Workplace Experience courses provide students with work experience in a field related to government, politics, and/or law. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04199G0.5011F	Leadership Mgmt	Government, Politics and Law—Other	Government, Politics and Law—Other Government, Politics and Law courses.
04199E0.5011F	Global Politics II IB	Government, Politics and Law—Other	Government, Politics and Law—Other Government, Politics and Law courses.
04199G0.5011F	Const Law	Government, Politics and Law—Other	Government, Politics and Law—Other Government, Politics and Law courses.
04199E0.5012F	Global Politics I IB	Government, Politics and Law—Other	Government, Politics and Law—Other Government, Politics and Law courses.
04201H0.5011F	Economics H	Economics	Economics courses provide students with an overview of economics with primary emphasis on the principles of microeconomics and the U.S. economic system. These courses may also cover topics such as principles of macroeconomics, international economics, and comparative economics. Economic principles may be presented in formal theoretical contexts, applied contexts, or both.
04201G0.5011F	Economics	Economics	Economics courses provide students with an overview of economics with primary emphasis on the principles of microeconomics and the U.S. economic system. These courses may also cover topics such as principles of macroeconomics, international economics, and comparative economics. Economic principles may be presented in formal theoretical contexts, applied contexts, or both.

04202G0.5011F	Comparative Economics	Social Sciences and History—Other	Comparative Economics courses offer students an opportunity to study different economies and economic systems, including an examination of various approaches to problems in micro- and macroeconomics.
04203E0.5011F	AP Microeconomics	AP Microeconomics	AP Microeconomics Following the College Board’s suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level microeconomics, AP Microeconomics courses provide students with a thorough understanding of the principles of economics that apply to the functions of individual decision makers (both consumers and producers). They place primary emphasis on the nature and functions of product markets, while also including a study of factor markets and the role of government in the economy.
04204E0.5011F	AP Macroeconomics	AP Macroeconomics	AP Macroeconomics Following the College Board’s suggested curriculum designed to parallel college-level macroeconomics, AP Macroeconomics courses provide students with a thorough understanding of the principles of economics that apply to an economic system as a whole. They place particular emphasis on the study of national income and price determination and developing students’ familiarity with economic performance measures, economic growth, and international economics.
04205E0.5011F	AP Economics	Economics	AP Economics courses prepare students for the College Board’s examinations in both AP Microeconomics and AP Macroeconomics. See SCED codes 04203 and 04204 for detailed content descriptions.
04206E0.5012F	Economics I IB	IB Economics	IB Economics courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Economics exams. The courses provide students with the basic tools of economic reasoning and teach them to use those tools to explain or interpret economic problems. Course content includes international and development economics, microeconomics, and macroeconomics.

04206E0.5022F	Economics II IB	IB Economics	IB Economics courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Economics exams. The courses provide students with the basic tools of economic reasoning and teach them to use those tools to explain or interpret economic problems. Course content includes international and development economics, microeconomics, and macroeconomics.
04207G0.5011F	Particular Topics in Economics	Social Sciences and History—Other	These courses examine a particular topic in Economics rather than provide a general overview of the field. Course topics may include international economics, economic development and growth of a particular country or region, or resource allocation.
04208G0.5011F	Microeconomics	Economics	Microeconomics courses provide students with an understanding of the principles of economics that apply to the decision-making behaviors of individuals. Economic principles may be presented in a formal theoretical context, applied contexts, or both.
04209G0.5011F	Macroeconomics	Economics	Macroeconomics courses provide students with an understanding of the principles of economics that apply to the performance, structure, behavior, and decision-making of an economy (regional, national, or global) as a whole. Economic principles may be presented in a formal theoretical context, applied contexts, or both.
04247G0.5011F	Economics—Independent Study	Economics	Economics—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within the field of economics. Independent Study courses may provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular specialization, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.

04248G0.5011F	Economics— Workplace Experience	Economics	Economics—Workplace Experience courses provide work experience in a field related to economics. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04249G0.5011F	Economics— Other	Economics	Other Economics courses.
04251G0.5011F	Anthropology	Anthropology	Anthropology courses introduce students to the study of human evolution with regard to the origin, distribution, physical attributes, environment, and culture of human beings. These courses provide an overview of anthropology, including but not limited to both physical and cultural anthropology.
04251H0.5011F	Anthropology H	Anthropology	Anthropology courses introduce students to the study of human evolution with regard to the origin, distribution, physical attributes, environment, and culture of human beings. These courses provide an overview of anthropology, including but not limited to both physical and cultural anthropology.
04252G0.5011F	Particular Topics in Anthropology	Social Sciences and History—Other	These courses examine a particular topic in anthropology, such as physical anthropology, cultural anthropology, or archeology, rather than provide a more comprehensive overview of the field.
04253G0.5011F	IB Social and Cultural Anthropology	Social Sciences and History—Other	IB Social and Cultural Anthropology courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Social and Cultural Anthropology exams. The courses aim to promote students' awareness of underlying patterns and causes of social relationships and systems, preconceptions and assumptions within the social environment, and the use of ethnographic data in creating models, drawing inferences, and making comparisons.

04254G0.2511F	Psychology I	Psychology	Psychology courses introduce students to the study of individual human behavior. Course content typically includes (but is not limited to) an overview of the field of psychology, topics in human growth and development, personality and behavior, and abnormal psychology.
04255G0.5011F	Particular Topics in Psychology	Social Sciences and History—Other	These courses examine a particular topic in psychology, such as human growth and development or personality, rather than provide a more comprehensive overview of the field.
04256G0.5011F	AP Psychology	AP Psychology	AP Psychology Following the College Board’s suggested curriculum designed to parallel a college-level introductory psychology course, AP Psychology courses introduce students to the systematic and scientific study of the behavior and mental processes of human beings and other animals, expose students to each major subfield within psychology, and enable students to examine the methods and ethics that psychologists use in their science and practice.
04257E0.5012F	Psychology I IB	IB Psychology	IB Psychology IB Psychology courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Psychology exams. Course content includes biological, cognitive, and socio-cultural influences on human behavior, as well as experimental research methodology. Course content may also include the study of abnormal, developmental, health or sport psychology, the psychology of human relationships, and qualitative research in psychology.
04257E0.5022F	Psychology II IB	IB Psychology	IB Psychology IB Psychology courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Psychology exams. Course content includes biological, cognitive, and socio-cultural influences on human behavior, as well as experimental research methodology. Course content may also include the study of abnormal, developmental, health or sport psychology, the psychology of human relationships, and qualitative research in psychology.

04258G0.5012F	Sociology I	Sociology	Sociology courses introduce students to the study of human behavior in society. These courses provide an overview of sociology, generally including (but not limited to) topics such as social institutions and norms, socialization and social change, and the relationships among individuals and groups in society.
04258G0.5022F	Sociology II	Sociology	Sociology courses introduce students to the study of human behavior in society. These courses provide an overview of sociology, generally including (but not limited to) topics such as social institutions and norms, socialization and social change, and the relationships among individuals and groups in society.
04259G0.5011F	Particular Topics in Sociology	Social Sciences and History—Other	These courses examine a particular topic in sociology, such as culture and society or the individual in society, rather than provide an overview of the field of sociology.
04260G0.5011F	Social Science	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Science courses provide students with an introduction to the various disciplines in the social sciences, including anthropology, economics, geography, history, political science, psychology, and sociology. Typically, these courses emphasize the methodologies of the social sciences and the differences among the various disciplines.
04261G0.5011F	Social Science Research	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Science Research courses emphasize the methods of social science research, including statistics and experimental design.
04297G0.5011F	Social Sciences—Independent Study	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within one of the social science fields. Independent Study courses may provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular specialization, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.

04298G0.5011F	Social Sciences—Workplace Experience	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences—Workplace Experience courses provide work experience in a field related to the social sciences. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04299G0.5011F	Contemporary Problems	Social Sciences - Other	Social Sciences—Other Social Studies courses.
04301G0.5011F	Arts/Humanities	Humanities Survey	Humanities Survey Humanities Survey courses provide an overview of major expressions of the cultural heritage of selected western and eastern civilizations. Content typically includes (but is not limited to) the examination of selected examples of art, music, literature, architecture, technology, philosophy, and religion of the cultures studied. These courses may also cover the languages and political institutions of these cultures.
04302G0.5011F	MYP Humanities	Humanities	Humanities courses examine and evoke student responses to human creative efforts and the world in particular historical periods and in particular cultures. Course content includes exploration, analysis, synthesis, and various responses to cultural traditions, including viewing, listening, speaking, reading, writing, performing, and creating. The courses may also examine relationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music.

04303G0.5011F	Issues of Western Humanities	Social Sciences and History—Other	Issues of Western Humanities courses introduce students to the study of the cultural heritage of human beings and provide an opportunity to explore our fundamental humanity. The content typically includes definitions of the humanities in relation to history, literature, religion, philosophy, art, music, and architecture and study of the cultures of Greece, Rome, and one or more settings in contemporary periods. Students are asked to analyze and clarify their sense of themselves; examine and clarify their responsibilities in relation to those of others; examine philosophies concerning moral responsibility for the future; and examine philosophies about human mortality.
04304E0.5012F	Theory of Knowledge I IB	IB Theory of Knowledge	IB Theory of Knowledge Obligatory for every International Baccalaureate Diploma degree candidate, IB Theory of Knowledge courses aim to stimulate critical self-reflection of students' knowledge and experiences. Course content generates questions regarding the bases of knowledge and their verification in the disciplines of mathematics, natural sciences, human sciences, the arts, history, ethics, religious knowledge systems, and indigenous knowledge systems, with an awareness of moral, political, and aesthetic judgments and biases. Students learn to appreciate the strengths and limitations of various kinds of knowledge; to relate studied subjects to one another, general knowledge, and living experiences; to formulate rational arguments; and to evaluate the role of language in knowledge and as a way to convey knowledge.

04304E0.5022F	Theory of Knowledge II IB	IB Theory of Knowledge	IB Theory of Knowledge Obligatory for every International Baccalaureate Diploma degree candidate, IB Theory of Knowledge courses aim to stimulate critical self-reflection of students' knowledge and experiences. Course content generates questions regarding the bases of knowledge and their verification in the disciplines of mathematics, natural sciences, human sciences, the arts, history, ethics, religious knowledge systems, and indigenous knowledge systems, with an awareness of moral, political, and aesthetic judgments and biases. Students learn to appreciate the strengths and limitations of various kinds of knowledge; to relate studied subjects to one another, general knowledge, and living experiences; to formulate rational arguments; and to evaluate the role of language in knowledge and as a way to convey knowledge.
04305G0.5011F	Soc St-Elect IV	Social Studies	Social Studies Social Studies courses enable students to study a group of related subjects addressing the elements and structures of human society that may include economics, geography, history, citizenship, and other social studies-related disciplines.
04305G0.5011F	Ext Soc Stud Lab	Social Studies	Social Studies Social Studies courses enable students to study a group of related subjects addressing the elements and structures of human society that may include economics, geography, history, citizenship, and other social studies-related disciplines.
04305G0.5011F	Survey Soc Stud	Social Studies	Social Studies Social Studies courses enable students to study a group of related subjects addressing the elements and structures of human society that may include economics, geography, history, citizenship, and other social studies-related disciplines.

04305G0.5013F	Soc St-Elect I	Social Studies	Social Studies Social Studies courses enable students to study a group of related subjects addressing the elements and structures of human society that may include economics, geography, history, citizenship, and other social studies-related disciplines.
04305G0.5023F	Soc St-Elect II	Social Studies	Social Studies Social Studies courses enable students to study a group of related subjects addressing the elements and structures of human society that may include economics, geography, history, citizenship, and other social studies-related disciplines.
04305G0.5033F	Soc St-Elect III	Social Studies	Social Studies Social Studies courses enable students to study a group of related subjects addressing the elements and structures of human society that may include economics, geography, history, citizenship, and other social studies-related disciplines.
04306G0.5011F	Philosophy	Philosophy	Philosophy courses introduce students to the discipline of philosophy as a way to analyze the principles underlying conduct, thought, knowledge, and the nature of the universe. Course content typically includes examination of the major philosophers and their writings.
04307G0.5011F	Particular Topics in Philosophy	Social Sciences and History—Other	These courses examine a particular topic in philosophy, such as aesthetic judgment, ethics, cosmology, or the philosophy of knowledge, rather than providing a more general overview of the subject.
04308G0.5011F	Modern Intellectual History	Social Sciences and History—Other	Modern Intellectual History courses provide a historical overview of modern intellectual movements, generally drawing from different disciplines such as political science, economics, and philosophy.

04309E0.5012F	Philosophy I IB	IB Philosophy	IB Philosophy IB Philosophy courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Philosophy exams. These courses challenge students to reflect upon and question the bases of knowledge and experience, to develop critical and systematic thinking, and to carefully analyze and formulate rational arguments. Students closely examine conceptual themes and philosophical texts, and undertake philosophical analysis of a non-philosophical stimulus, such as a painting or poem.
04309E0.5022F	Philosophy II IB	IB Philosophy	IB Philosophy IB Philosophy courses prepare students to take the International Baccalaureate Philosophy exams. These courses challenge students to reflect upon and question the bases of knowledge and experience, to develop critical and systematic thinking, and to carefully analyze and formulate rational arguments. Students closely examine conceptual themes and philosophical texts, and undertake philosophical analysis of a non-philosophical stimulus, such as a painting or poem.
04310G0.5011F	Class Studies II	Particular Topics in Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities These courses cover particular topics in humanities such as the interrelationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music or the exploration of a particular time period rather than provide a general overview of the subject.
04310G0.5011F	Class Logic/Rhet	Particular Topics in Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities These courses cover particular topics in humanities such as the interrelationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music or the exploration of a particular time period rather than provide a general overview of the subject.
04310G0.5011F	Intro Class Stud	Particular Topics in Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities These courses cover particular topics in humanities such as the interrelationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music or the exploration of a particular time period rather than provide a general overview of the subject.

04310G0.5011F	Interstudy Geoculture	Particular Topics in Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities These courses cover particular topics in humanities such as the interrelationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music or the exploration of a particular time period rather than provide a general overview of the subject.
04310G0.5011F	Culture Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities These courses cover particular topics in humanities such as the interrelationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music or the exploration of a particular time period rather than provide a general overview of the subject.
04310G0.5012F	Myth and Folklore	Particular Topics in Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities These courses cover particular topics in humanities such as the interrelationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music or the exploration of a particular time period rather than provide a general overview of the subject.
04310G0.2522F	Mythology and Folklore II	Particular Topics in Humanities	Particular Topics in Humanities These courses cover particular topics in humanities such as the interrelationships among painting, sculpture, architecture, and music or the exploration of a particular time period rather than provide a general overview of the subject.
04311G0.5011F	CI Thinking Skills	CI Thinking Skills	Cambridge International (CI) Thinking Skills courses prepare students to take the Cambridge Thinking Skills assessments and develop skills essential for successful progression to higher education or professional employment. These courses develop students' abilities to analyze unfamiliar problems, devise problem solving strategies, and evaluate the diverse ways a problem may be solved through evidence-based arguments. Students will gain language skills in areas of problem solving, critical thinking, problem analysis and solution, and applied reasoning.

04347G0.5011F	Humanities— Independent Study	Social Sciences and History—Other	Humanities—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within the field of humanities. Independent Study courses may provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular specialization, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.
04348G0.5011F	Humanities— Workplace Experience	Social Sciences and History—Other	Humanities—Workplace Experience courses provide work experience in a field related to humanities. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04349H0.5011F	MYP Arts and Humanities H	Humanities—Other	Humanities—Other Humanities courses.
04349G0.5011F	World Religions	Humanities—Other	Humanities—Other Humanities courses.
04349G0.5011F	World Religions	Humanities—Other	Humanities—Other Humanities courses.
04428GECEC11F	Social Studies (early childhood education)	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Studies (early childhood education) courses provide a developmentally appropriate understanding of social studies concepts, helping students begin to develop an understanding of self and others; the concept of time (past and present events); and skills conducive to citizenship, such as group decision making. Content is age appropriate and conforms to any existing state standards for early childhood education.

04429GPKPK11F	Social Studies (pre-kindergarten)	Social Studies (pre-kindergarten)	Social Studies (pre-kindergarten) courses provide a developmentally appropriate understanding of social studies concepts, helping students begin to develop an understanding of self and others; the concept of time (past and present events); and skills conducive to citizenship, such as group decision making. Content is age appropriate and conforms to any existing state standards for pre-kindergarten education.
04430GKGKG11F	Social Studies (kindergarten)	Social Studies (kindergarten)	Social Studies (kindergarten) courses develop foundational skills in the social studies disciplines: history, geography, civics and government, economics, and multiculturalism. These disciplines are often taught together and organized around the theme building community. Specific content is related to standards for grade kindergarten.
04431G010111F	Social Studies (grade 1)	Social Studies (grade 1)	Social Studies (grade 1) courses develop foundational skills in the social studies disciplines: history, geography, civics and government, economics, multiculturalism. These disciplines are often taught together and organized around the theme community we live and work in. Specific content is related to standards for grade 1.
04432G020211F	Social Studies (grade 2)	Social Studies (grade 2)	Social Studies (grade 2) courses develop foundational skills in the social studies disciplines: history, geography, civics and government, economics, and multiculturalism. These disciplines are often taught together and organized around the theme of national identity and culture. Specific content is related to standards for grade 2.
04433G030311F	Social Studies (grade 3)	Social Studies (grade 3)	Social Studies (grade 3) courses build on previous knowledge and introduce concepts in the social studies disciplines: history, geography, civics and government, and economics. Instruction of the disciplines is often integrated for instructional purposes. Students may study these disciplines through the context of a specific theme or discipline, such as state-based social studies or U.S. history. Specific content depends upon state standards for grade 3.

04434G040411F	Social Studies (grade 4)	Social Studies (grade 4)	Social Studies (grade 4) courses continue to develop skills in history, geography, civics and government, and economics. Although the four disciplines are typically integrated, these courses may take a more discipline-specific approach, such as concentrating on U.S. history, state-specific history, or civic engagement for periods of time. Specific content depends upon state standards for grade 4.
04435G050511F	Social Studies (grade 5)	Social Studies (grade 5)	Social Studies (grade 5) courses develop foundational skills in the social studies disciplines: history, geography, civics and government, economics, financial literacy, and multiculturalism. These disciplines are often taught together and organized around the theme U.S.-creating a new nation. Specific content is related to standards for grade 5.
04436G060611F	Social Studies (grade 6)	Social Studies (grade 6)	Social Studies (grade 6) courses provide a greater understanding of social studies disciplines, including history, geography, civics and government, and economics. These courses often focus on the history, culture, and government of various specific world societies. Typically, students develop skills used in the social studies disciplines. Specific content depends upon state standards for grade 6.

04437G070711F	Social Studies (grade 7)	Social Studies (grade 7)	Social Studies (grade 7) courses develop foundational skills in the social studies disciplines: history, geography, civics and government, economics, financial literacy, and multiculturalism. These disciplines are often taught together and organized around the theme of Early US History or World Geography and Global Studies. Specific content is related to standards for grade 6-8.
04438G080811F	Social Studies (grade 8)	Social Studies (grade 8)	Social Studies (grade 8) courses develop foundational skills in the social studies disciplines: history, geography, civics and government, economics, financial literacy, and multiculturalism. These disciplines are often taught together and organized around the theme of Early US History or World Geography and Global Studies. Specific content is related to standards for grade 6-8.
04439G0.5011F	Social Studies—General	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Studies—General courses involve content that is not grade differentiated and may apply to a range of consecutive grades (e.g., "by third grade, students should know and be able to do..."). These courses include content that may be applicable to states or localities that do not employ grade-level content standards. [These courses provide broad content that is not organized as described elsewhere (i.e., Social Studies, early childhood education through grade 8.)
04994G0.5011F	Social Sciences and History—Proficiency Development	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Proficiency Development courses are designed to assist students in acquiring the skills necessary to pass proficiency examinations related to history and/or other social sciences.
04995G0.5011F	Social Sciences and History—Aide	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Aide courses offer students the opportunity to assist instructors in preparing, organizing, or delivering course curricula. Students may provide tutorial or instructional assistance to other students.

04996G0.5011F	Social Sciences and History—Supplemental	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Supplemental courses, designed to be taken in addition to or in coordination with other social sciences and history courses, provide instruction to assist students in acquiring social studies/social science skills so that students attain necessary grade-level skills or reach a desired competency level.
04997G0.5011F	Adv Study SocStdy	Social Sciences and History—Independent Study	Social Sciences and History—Independent Study Social Sciences and History—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within one of the fields of social studies. These courses provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular specialization, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.
04997G0.5011F	Amer Stdy-Hist	Social Sciences and History—Independent Study	Social Sciences and History—Independent Study Social Sciences and History—Independent Study courses, often conducted with instructors as mentors, enable students to explore topics of interest within one of the fields of social studies. These courses provide students with an opportunity to expand their expertise in a particular specialization, to explore a topic of special interest, or to develop more advanced skills.
04998G0.5011F	Social Sciences and History—Workplace Experience	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Workplace Experience courses provide work experience in a field related to social sciences and/or history. Goals are typically set cooperatively by the student, teacher, and employer (although students are not necessarily paid). These courses may include classroom activities as well, involving further study of the field or discussion regarding experiences that students encounter in the workplace.
04999G0.5011F	Elective	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999G0.5011F	Hum Amer Hist	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.

04999H0.5011F	Elective H	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999H0.5011F	Soc St Out-of-Dist H	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999H0.5011F	Intstdy Cur Thm H	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999G0.5011F	Internl Cultures	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999H0.5011F	Intstdy Goveco H	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999H0.5011F	Globl Diplmcy UN-H	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999G0.5011F	Internl Relations	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.
04999H0.5011F	Intstdy Hist H	Social Sciences and History—Other	Social Sciences and History—Other Social Sciences and History courses.